II. Accounting Principles Applied

The abbreviated financial statements have been done following the accounting principles established in the Trade Code, in the Company Law and the General Accounting Plan approved by Royal Decree 1514/2.007 of 16th of November as well by Royal decree 1515/2007 which approves the General Accounting Plan for SMEs of the same date.

These accounting principles generally accepted and applied by the society are those of company running, accruals, consistency, prudence, no compensation and relative importance.

III. Critical aspects of measurement and estimation of uncertainty.

a) There are no risks and uncertainty to date of the closing fiscal year that could involve significant changes in the value of the assets or liabilities in the following year.

b) There have been no significant changes in accounting estimates that affect the current year or that may be expected to affect future years.

c). Management believes that there are no important uncertainties related to events or conditions that may contribute significant doubt on the possibility that the company continues to operate normally. Accordingly, these financial statements have been prepared under the principle of a company in function.

IV. Comparison of the information

The principle of uniformity has been maintained by not changing the criteria of the accounting. The comparison of the current year with the previous one has been carried out without any change in its basic structure

V. Elements contained in various Parcels.

1. Financial Assets

a. Loans and Receivables

Loans and receivables are initially measured at their fair value, which unless contrary evidence, is the transaction price, which equals the fair value of the consideration paid plus transaction costs directly attributable to it. However, trade credits with a maturity not exceeding one year and not having a contractual interest rate are measured at their nominal value when the effect of not discounting the cash flows is not significant.

The subsequent valuation of these assets are carried out at amortized cost and accounting for the interest accrued in the profit and loss account applying the method of effective interest rate.

At year-end the necessary valuation adjustments are made whenever there is objective evidence of impairment. The impairment loss of these financial assets is the difference between book value and present value of future cash flows estimated to generate discounted at the effective interest rate calculated at the time of initial recognition.

The credits reflected in section II. "Trade and other receivables" correspond to the fees of the owners of the years 2008, 2009 and 2010 for outstanding fees at December 31, 2010. Not being necessary to reflect the impairment of the value of these loans by the Governing Body of the Community who considers them fully collectible.

b. Investments held until maturity.

The investments held to maturity are initially measured at fair value, which unless contrary evidence, is the transaction price, which equals the fair value of the consideration paid plus transaction costs directly attributable to it.

The subsequent valuation of these assets are carried at amortized cost and accounted for the interest accrued in the profit and loss account using the method of effective interest rate.

At year-end valuation the necessary adjustments are made whenever there is objective evidence of impairment, applying the criteria for loans and receivables.

c. Financial assets held for trading.

There are no financial assets held to maturity.

d. Other financial assets at fair value with changes in the profit and loss account

e. Equity investments in group companies, joint ventures and associates.

There are no equity investments in group companies, joint ventures and associates.

f. Financial assets available for sale

There are no financial assets available for sale.

g. Derecognising of financial assets.

The derecognising of the financial assets occurs when the contractual rights to receive cash flows of such have been relinquished or expired, having transferred substantially all risks and rewards inherent to the ownership of such. When the financial asset is derecognised, the difference between the consideration received and the carrying value of financial asset determines the gain or loss arising on derecognising of the asset as part of the profit in it to produce.

2. Financial Liabilities

a. Debts and Payables

Debts and payables are initially measured at fair value, unless contrary evidence is the price of the transaction, which is equal to the fair value of the consideration received adjusted for transaction expenses directly attributable to them. However, the debts by trading with maturity not exceeding one year and not having a contractual interest rate are measured at their nominal value when the effect of not discounting the cash flows is not significant.

The payment to suppliers is made according to the terms and conditions of payment established in their contracts.

The subsequent measurement is carried at amortized cost. Accrued interest is recorded in the profit and loss account using the method of effective interest rate. However, the debts due to trade up to one year to be initially measured at their nominal value, will continue to value for that amount.

b. Financial liabilities held for trading

There are no financial liabilities held for trading.

c. Derecognition of financial liabilities

The derecognition of a financial liability occurs when the obligation is extinguished. The difference between the carrying amount of the financial liability and the consideration paid is recognized in the profit and loss account in the period in which it occurs.

i. Income and expenditure

The Income and expenses are recognized in the profit and loss account based on the actual flow of goods and services they represent and regardless of the moment when the monetary or financial flow occurs.

For operational reasons and since their impact does not represent a significant economic effect on the enclosed financial statements and following the principles of uniformity that we apply every year, the consumption of the energy supply of the last billing period is recorded in January-February books of the following year.

Income from the sale of goods and services is valued at the fair value of the consideration received or receivable resulting there from and unless evidence of the contrary, is the agreed price for such goods or services.

The revenue from services is recognized by considering the percentage of completion of service to the close of the year, when the amount of income, the degree of implementation, the costs already incurred and still to be incurred can be measured reliably and it is likely that the Company receives the benefits or economic returns resulting from the transaction.

In the case of services whose outcome can not be estimated reliably, revenue is recognized only by the amount of the expenses recognized that are recoverable.
